My first dive was in 1982, on the largest Barrier Reef in the Northern Hemisphere off the coast of Belize. Since then I have dived all over the world in all the Oceans (except the Arctic but on my bucket list) and around the UK coastline.

The early part of my diving career was diving for personal enjoyment and the satisfaction of being in the water. When I became a PADI Pro my diving habits changed and I now enjoy teaching and helping others to improve their diving abilities. Without doubt, I find the most enjoyable part of teaching is the first step, be it Discover Scuba Diving in the pool or Open Water certification. I love the feeling when reluctant or nervous students overcome their anxieties and transform into Divers.
